BUYERS LEARN OF SELLING POINTS OF THIS CITY

Purchasing Agents, Here at Luncheon, Receive Hearty Glendale Greetings

Enthusiasm was the principal feature of the purchasing agents' luncheon yesterday noon at the Broadway Inn, 637 East Broadway, at which was represented the combined annual purchasing power of $600,000,000.

For the occasion, however, all responsibility had been cast aside and the "P. A.'s" were bent upon just one object—the having of a good time. They seemed to be succeeding quite well, too. "Windy," or more formally Winfield Rue of San Francisco, thumped out a jazz prelude and postlude upon the piano and "Charlie" Wall of Los Angeles led the orchestra of glasses. Sociability seemed to ooze from those present like water from a sponge. Pep? The tavern fairly shook with it.

Mayor Spencer Robinson received a hearty reception. He made a short speech of welcome which went over big and then sang two songs both of which were greatly applauded.

Speaks of Knocks

"Everybody that comes to Glendale is perfectly satisfied," he remarked. "We have a corral out there in the hills for knockers. They are put out there alone and left to knock their heads together. A good deal of the time there's only one there at a time, so we had a big post put in the middle of the corral so that he could knock his head against it. Every morning the chief of police goes out there and takes out the dead ones."

Confidence that those present would want to buy all of Glendale, if they were informed in regard to it, was expressed by James M. Rhoades, who made a short speech of welcome in behalf of the Glendale Chamber of Commerce.

"This is a town of homes, a city of homes!" he exclaimed. "It is a good place to live and that has made it grow."

Keeps Things Humming

Owing to the fact that C. P. Visel, president of the Los Angeles Purchasing Agents' association, lost his voice in Saturday's festivities, J. W. Shaffer, vice-

FIRST FORUM OF AUTUMN IS HELD

Chamber of Commerce at Lunch Today Discusses Civic Questions

This noon there was in session the most important Chamber of Commerce meeting held in Glendale for some time. In fact, it is a triangular meeting from one viewpoint and a many-sided meeting from another.

First, it is the first autumn meeting of the chamber. The program was opened with luncheon, and as The Evening News went to press, the chamber directorate was having a short snappy meeting previous to joining in the forum session with the membership, which occupied other tables.

Civic Bodies Represented

The Rotary club, Kiwanis club, Merchants' Credit association, and Realty board each had a committee of five present at the invitation of the Chamber of Commerce. While the exact purpose of these various committees had not yet been divulged, it is known that certain civic campaigns of utmost importance—both those under way and those under consideration will be entered with a vigor never before witnessed in the civic development of Glendale.

Several New Members

The first action taken by the directors was the acceptance of the following listed new members of the Chamber of Commerce:

H. Goertz, 347 North Central avenue, real estate; J. L. S. Perch, 723 East Broadway, broker; E. O. Fitz, 708 East Broadway; Baker Iron Works, 912 North Broadway, Los Angeles; G. W. Strang, 420 Porter street; Glendale Camp Ground, R. F. D. No. 5, Box 747, Auto Camping; Coughlin Electric Co., 310 East Broadway; Hubert Starr, 1021 Merchants National Bank Building, Los Angeles, attorney; Dr. C. W. Bachmann, 831 East Windsor Road, dentist; Kafeteria Shoe Store, 126 North Brand, retail shoes; M. Lightner Vishnek, 126 South Brand, Brunswick phonographs; Crown Cafe, 136½ North Brand; Frank Graves Sash, Door & Window Co., 2000 Pasadena avenue, Los Angeles; Glenview Farm, 1027 Glenwood Road, dairy.

THEY TASTE GOOD

Glendale peaches! Which kind, you say? It is the garden variety of Glendale peaches referred to this time. A basket of peaches, averaging ten inches in circumference, was the gift from Mrs. Stella Goodman of 645 North Central avenue. This luscious fruit was raised on a tree in her yard.

THREE-HOUR AUTO PARKING STARTS ON THURSDAY

New City Ordinance Goes Into Effect and Places Certain Restrictions

There's a three-hour auto parking limit downtown in Glendale, beginning Thursday, September 7.

Also, there are some other new restrictions on motorists, such as the prohibition of parking on any public way, anywhere in Glendale, between 1 and 5 o'clock in the morning. The fine may be $300 and or 150 days in city or county jail.

Ordinance No. 635, passed August 7, becomes effective at midnight tonight. It limits parking of autos and other vehicles to three hours, between 9 a. m. and 5 p. m., except on Sundays and holidays, within the following boundaries:

Either side of Brand boulevard from Colorado and California streets, and either side of Broadway between Central avenue and Everett street.

It prohibits parking in any street or alley less than twenty feet wide, at any time. It prohibits parking at any curb parallel to any safety zone; likewise along the east side of Brand boulevard within twenty-five feet of where the curb starts to turn easterly into Broadway, and the south side of Broadway within twenty-five feet of where the curb turns south in Brand.

Numerous Restrictions

Part of Howard street north of Broadway to the bend—about a half block—is forbidden parking territory. No parking is allowed within fifteen feet of any street corner. Twenty feet of "no parking" space is permitted in front of every church, theater, hotel, "or other public building."

Also, parked cars within a large downtown area must park in "nose first," at the curb at a 45-degree angle, diagonally facing the direction of the traffic on the side of the street parked.

'Tis a complicated ordinance, and motorists would do well to secure a copy of it, No. 635, city officials say.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a charming gown of white crepe de chine and all-over lace and carried white rosebuds. She was attended by her sister, Miss Pauline Wilson, as bridesmaid. Her costume was of orchid organdie and she carried sweet peas. Ludwig Gossman was the best man. SCOUTS AT HOME FROM MEETING AT CAPITAL

Glendale Delegation Returns After State Conference of Considerable Benefit

In company with Scout Executive Harold F. Benner, Scouts Clifford Walcott and Dallas Kalbaugh of Troop No. 2 and Kenneth Hellyer of Troop No. 3, returned from the Older Scouts Conference at the Sacramento State Fair early yesterday morning.

Soon after the last conference held Sunday, following the church services, the local delegation piled into their car and started for home. They had no trouble going either way and made a safe, quick trip. Robert Eastman of Troop No. 2, another member of the delegation left the group at Fresno where he met his parents who went on a trip to San Francisco and other northern points.

According to the delegates the conference was a wonderful success from start to finish. Nearly 150 older scouts from practically every first class council in the state, all of first class rank or above and over fifteen years old, were in attendance. They were indeed the cream of the coming generation. Every fellow a leader.

Open With Banquet

The opening banquet was held at Goblin's Grill with the Sacramento Rotary club as hosts. Fred C. Yoerk, president of the Sacramento Boy Scout Council made the address of welcome which was responded to by Eagle Scout Choi of Santa Ana. Judge Peter J. Shields' talk on "The Future" went home to every Scout present. He dealt with the necessity of putting supreme emphasis on the Scout Oath and of the great things in store for the fellow who works. "The older Scouts," he declared, "are on the threshold of life, so prepare now those facilities which will help to a successful life."

The Scouts camped on the State Fair grounds and on Saturday morning held their first conference which took up the subjects

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Thompson and Family Tell of Conditions In East

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Thompson and family of 348 West Milford street returned last week from a 6500-mile automobile trip east, which took them through eleven states and as far east as Sedalia, Mo. They report having a most wonderful trip with no serious motor difficulties, never having been laid up on the road for repairs which could not be fixed by Mr. Thompson himself.

Mr. Thompson states that the trip from Glendale to Topeka, Kans., was made in ten running days, it having taken two weeks altogether, but they stopped for four days at the Grand Canyon of the Arizona. At Topeka, Kans., and Kansas City, Mo., they visited relatives and friends.

Visit Yellowstone Park

The trip east was made by way of the Santa Fe trail. Returning, Mr. and Mrs. Thompson and family stopped for five days at Yellowstone National Park, Wyo., and came to California by way of the northern route, through Montana, Idaho, Washington and Oregon.

In commenting on business and agricultural conditions in the various states through which they motored, Mr. and Mrs. Thompson state:

"The crops in the farming districts visited by us were unusually good. The farmers seem to be having a very heavy crop of fruit this season. However, they are complaining about the low prices the farmers are receiving for their products. Business conditions generally appear to be improving.

"The people are always interested in California and want to hear about it. Most of them are talking about making a trip here or coming here to live. Those who have already made the trip say, 'That is the only place.' The day we camped at the tourist park in Denver, Colo., there were 6000 people camping there. We have had a wonderful trip, but are glad to be back after being away over two months."

TELLS OF GROWTH BY ADVENTISTS' CONFERENCE

W. Milton Adams In Report of Year's Work; Offers Facts and Figures

One of the big features of the past three active days at the encampment of Seventh-day Adventist churches of the Southern California Conference in Los Angeles, was the report made by W. Milton Adams, president of the conference, on the period July 1, 1920 to June 30, 1922.

Saturday, the Sabbath of the church, saw every available camping and parking space and the pavilion tent and departmental tents crowded full for the day and evening meetings. It is estimated that well over 5000 persons were assembled on the camp grounds Saturday.

Full of statistics and data with regard to the activities of the conference, including Los Angeles, Santa Barbara, Ventura and San Luis Obispo counties, President Adams' report is of widespread interest both to church and non-church members.

Presents Figures

In introduction Mr. Adams states that the combined population of the four counties in the conference is 1,581,714 and of that number 1,190,000 persons live in Los Angeles county, leaving only 91,714 in the other three counties. The extent of the conference territory is 300 miles in length, extending from the Los Angeles county line between Pomona and Ontario on the south, to the county line a short distance north of Paso Robles.

Included in this territory the conference has thirty-nine church organizations, consisting of 4000 members. The membership two years ago was 3101.

Outlining the administration of the conference Mr. Adams states that there are thirty church buildings with a seating capacity of 7000, valued at $149,000 and practically free from debt. There are eight church organizations without buildings, three of which have plans in hand for building.

Number of Workers

Furthermore the report shows that the conference workers' list shows that there are fifteen ordained ministers, five licentiates,

COUNCIL SEEKING LOWER P. E. FARE

Cut for Hollywood Cause of Hope for Glendale, So Officials Believe

Why does Hollywood get a rate of 16 cents round trip for commutation tickets to Los Angeles while Glendale has to pay 21 cents for a shorter distance?

The recent decision of the California Railway commission, reducing Hollywood's commutation fare from 10 to 8 cents, will be the subject of discussion at tonight's session of the city council.

The recent election has considerable to do with this decision, according to Mayor Spencer Robinson. He remarked that "it is evident that the members of this commission are desirous of making a favorable impression upon the new candidates for governor."

There is more reason why the fare should be reducted to Glendale than to Hollywood, in the opinion of City Manager W. H. Reeves. He called attention this morning to the fact that the local fare is more unjust than the Hollywood fare.

Fine for Hollywood

Councilman A. H. Lapham remarked that the decision was fine for the people of Holiywood. He asserted that there is nothing fair or equitable in the comparison of Glendale and Hollywood rates.

Councilman Sam Davis this morning expressed his displeasure once more over the Glendale rate. He commented on the fact that reducing Glendale's commutation rate a proportionate one-fifth would make it about 17 cents—which would be too high.

The new electric line on Glendale avenue is likely to influence the rate on the Pacific Electric, according to Mr. Davis. He thinks it not unlikely that the Pacific Electric may ask to have its local passenger tariff reduced if it finds that its business is affected to any great extent.

Cannot Boost Fare

The possibility of the Pacific Electric asking to have the fare of the new line brought up to its own rate is denounced by Mr. Davis. He said that this would be impossible because of the fact that the rate per mile on the new line will be even higher than that charged per mile on the Pacific Electric. He stated that the reason the through fare would be cheaper was because the new line will connect with a yellow car line which already charges 5-cent fare.

"This is the biggest question before the city today," said Mr. Davis. "I got the Pacific Electric to make a signed statement that they would not oppose the electrification of the railroad."

BREAD IS TOPIC AT BIBLE CLASS

Rev. Keith L. Brooks Uses 'Staff of Life' to Show 'Need of Salvation'

"The Bread of Salvation" was the topic of the address Sunday morning in the council chamber of the city hall before the members of the Men's Bible class of the Presbyterian church.

"We may learn many lessons from bread as the figure of salvation in Christ," declared Rev. Keith L. Brooks. "Bread is the staple of existence. Old and young, in palace or hut, have to eat their bread. As it is the staff of life, so Christ is the universal spiritual food. Prince, peasant, man, woman, whoever has eternal life, must have Him.

"Bread is food we never tire of. Our tastes vary with other foods but, if the wife fails to bring on the bread, the 'old man' hollers. Earthly pleasures lose their power shortly. What fascinates today does not interest tomorrow. Christ is the unfailing source of satisfaction, the spiritual necessity of which we never tire.

Full of Materials

"Bread is nourishing food. Our bodies need many building materials. Most of them are found in good bread. The food of our spiritual natures is concrete in Christ. It takes many elements to make our characters godlike, yet thousands testify that the daily spiritual waste may be renewed through Him.

"Bread is a thoroughly prepared food. Grain grown in the summer sunshine and showers is cut down, smitten again and again in the threshing process, ground repeatedly in the mill, kneaded and pounded on the board and finally subjected to the fierce heat of the oven. It is Christ cut down, threshed on the floor of human woe, ground in the mill of judgment against sin, risen and exalted who becomes the bread of life to souls.

"Bread is the result of a death and resurrection. It tells the story of a change from weakness to power. One grain of wheat kept dry will remain alone. Laid in the bosom of mother earth, its wrappings fall off, its substance is changed, its life principle is released and it rises to verdure, fruitage and glory.

"So was the death of Jesus in its resulting consequences. Had there been no death and resurrection there would have been no church, no reconciliation, no spiritual food."

RESIDENCE ROBBED

Contractor B. W. Sherwood reports that his house at 423 East Doss street was robbed recently of considerable silverware. He also mentioned the theft of twelve sacks of cement from a job at Oxford and Vassar streets.

Shucks! Say, Golden State Is Only Place!

Fred V. Shuck of the Shuck Music company, 211-213 North Brand boulevard, has accomplished a dual purpose in the eastern trip which he is now completing.

In the first place he visited the music stores, piano and instrument factories of the east, and got a new stock line-up which is causing a big sale to be staged here now.

As a second and more important consideration, he has won his folks to California. Father, mother and sister are accompanying him from Urbana, Ill., over the Santa Fe trail by automobile. They will become permanent residents of Glendale.

Mr. Shuck has sent word ahead to his associates here to clear the floor of his store for the new shipments of pianos, phonographs and musical instruments and today a big sale is being announced in the advertising columns.

Sanitary Inspector Warns of Dog Bites

Proven cases of rabies among local dogs makes it essential that every person bitten by a dog should report at once to the health department for examination.

This warning was issued this morning by Paul Vissman, municipal sanitary inspector.

Arrangements have been made to see that every person who needs it is given the pasteur treatment without cost. As this is quite expensive Mr. Vissman believes this fact is worthy of notice.

Miss Adriane Jongenell, city bacteriologist will have charge of these treatments, as soon as the proper apparatus arrives in the city laboratory which is located in the former Tropico city hall. Meanwhile, patients are being sent to Los Angeles at the city's expense.

FRIEND W. RICHARDSON FAMILY 'JUST PLAIN FOLKS'

Republican Nominee Pledges Economy and Promises to Make Good

WIFE OF CANDIDATE DECLARES NO 'FUSS OR POMP'

Courtesy Los Angeles Examiner

THEY ARE JUST 'PLAIN FOLKS'

Here are Friend W. Richardson, Republican nominee for governor of California, his wife, who announces there will be no fuss or pomp at the governor's mansion, and their youngest son, John. The picture was taken the other day in the Richardsons' apartments at Long Beach.

That the Roosevelt family was the only typical American family to occupy the White House is an accepted fact, but California is to have a parallel case when Friend W. Richardson is elected governor, for his supporters claim that what the Roosevelt family was nationally the Richardson family will be to California.

Unassuming happiness and devoted and efficient service to the people of California is the prediction for the Richardson family when they are installed in the gubernatorial mansion at Sacramento.

These sentiments have been voiced by both Mr. and Mrs. Richardson. Mrs. Richardson smilingly proclaims, "None of this fuss or pomp for me," while her husband confidently adds, "I'll show them economy in all its glory when I occupy the governor's chair, as I fully expect to do. My motto is 'Make good on the job, regardless of politics or anything else.'"

Then there is their youngest son, John, who is a typical barefoot boy, and two other children, a son and daughter, both married. Paul is employed by a San Francisco bond house, and Mrs. George R. Hilby, nee Ruth Richardson, resides in Sacramento.

The Richardsons are "just folks," Mrs. Richardson claiming as her hobbies housekeeping and the care of "her little flock," while Mr. Richardson says motoring is the sport of sports, especially in the mountains.

Joining with the Richardsons in the happiness over the nomination of Mr. Richardson as Republican candidate for governor, are the editors of Southern California, who are to honor Mr. Richardson tonight with a jubilee dinner at the City Club in Los Angeles.

TEST WORDS FOR CHURCH OF TODAY

Rev. C. H. Chrisman, In His First Sermon, Gives Modern Meaning

Rev. C. H. Chrisman, who arrived last week from Spokane, Sunday morning assumed the pastorate of the Christian and Missionary Alliance, 310 East Chestnut street, and preached his first local sermon to a record congregation.

The subject of his sermon was "Test Words of the Early Church." According to Rev. Chrisman these should be the test words of today, also.

"The word 'passion' does not have a definite meaning in modern English as in connection with the Acts of the Apostles," he asserted. "It represents Christ's crucifixion, His death, His blood shed. It is not the blood that flowed in His veins that gives us life, but the blood that flowed out of His veins. The blood that flowed at Calvary is the touchstone of the holy Christian faith.

"The best attested fact in history is the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead. The print of the nails, the pierced side, the resurrections, the ascension, are all proved.

Behind on Promises

"The first chapter of Acts alludes to the baptism of the holy spirit and there must be no antagonism to this teaching. The apostles attempted no kind of work until they went back to Jerusalem to wait for the baptism of the Holy Spirit. There are things that we cannot possibly touch or bring to pass except by prayer and, if we are going to measure up to a definite standard, we must wait upon God.

"We are way behind on our promises. We pray so much we forget to praise. We should not go by our feeling, we should go by our faith. Instead of getting on that 'Train of the Lonesome Whine,' we should say, "Lord, I have set this day to praise thee.'"

It is said that $1,700,000 has been expended during the last 100 years in the translation of the Bible into Chinese.

TRIPLE MIRACLE SERMON SUBJECT

Deaf and Dumb Youth Gets Restored and Is Able to Command Language

"A Three-Fold Miracle" was the subject of the sermon Sunday morning at the First Lutheran church.

"Some friends brought a young man to Jesus who could neither hear not speak, for he was deaf and dumb," remarked Dr. H. C. Funk. "With the touch of the Master's hand, however, we are told that the young man heard every word. That's the first wonderful thing. The second marvel is that the cords of his tongue were loosed. And the third is equally wonderful; namely, that he had instant command of their language and spoke it plainly.

"You know it requires years of study to acquire the correct use of a language. Yet, here is a young man who had never heard a word in his life, instantly rejoicing and praising God. May the Master help us to study this lesson today in such a way that our tongues may be loosed to declare the glory and goodness of God and to win souls for Christ.

"We note that the friends of the deaf man could not be restrained from praising God for the wonderful things that had been done. You know there is a wonderful power in praising God. It becomes contagious and irresistable.

"I want to say right here that I appreciate especially the efforts of our choir in rendering the responsive service and the beautiful hymns of praise.

"Whenever you find a congregation that doesn't sing and won't sing, you can make up your mind that that church is spiritually dead. Think of people, whose ears are opened and whose tongues are loosened on every subject but religion, sitting there like they were both tongue tied and deaf and dumb. You know, I think every family in our church ought to have one or two hymn books and then use them. Let all the people praise Him.

"Yes, music hath charms, and we sing because our hearts are full of joy. When the foundations of the earth were laid, we are told that the morning stars sang together and all the sons of God shouted for joy.

"Be natural. If we love God and love each other, don't be ashamed to shed tears of joy and give expression to your true emotions."

It's all right to grin and bear it, but our notion of a real man is one who will bear his troubles without grinning.

Warren Says Change Work for Vacation

E. G. Warren, real estate broker at 300½ South Brand, says that a change in work is the same as no work for vacation purposes.

Following this idea, Warren spent a good deal of the last six weeks doing platform work for the Huntington Park Development company, which had a phenomenal sale in the opening of Huntington Park addition, and for the Hoffine Middleton company, which is offering two subdivisions in the southwest district, called Western Avenue Park and Belle Mead, respectively. At the latter place, Mr. Warren was speaker of the day Labor Day. Those who heard him stated that he gave them much of information and entertainment along the lines of Southern California history, present conditions, and future possibilities.

Mr. Warren has had much experience as a lecturer and has received flattering offers to close his real estate business here and devote his entire time to this line of work. But he is satisfied with Glendale as a place to live and conduct business and he states that lecturing, for a time at least, will be only a side line.

are not an experiment. Cooking authorities and myriads of America's good housewives enthusiastically endorse them. Cooking by steam "under pressure" brings out all the flavors and juices and makes all food, even toughest meats, tender and delicious, in ¼ the time, with ¼ the fuel. CURTISS' LATEST INVENTION IS FLYING BOAT GLIDER

—Copyright Underwood & Underwood.

Glen H. Curtiss, inventor of the flying boat, has just built a flying boat glider. Tests will soon be made on Great South Bay, Long Island. The glider is a replica of the famous NC 4, first airplane to fly the Atlantic. It is built of wood, duralumin and silk—the hull being of metal and the wings of fabric. It measures 28 feet from tip to tip of the wings, and 22 feet 11 inches over all. Empty it weighs but 150 pounds. Eventually Mr. Curtiss hopes to rise from the surface of the sea, but in the first trials the glider will be launched from the deck of a speed boat or by towing. Photo shows Mr. Curtiss seated in his new flying boat glider.

'SOLITUDE' TOPIC OF SUNDAY TALK

Rev. H. G. Preston, at Home From Vacation, Declares 'Get Alone With God'

Rev. Harley G. Preston, who has returned from his vacation, Sunday morning was welcomed back to the pulpit of the Pacific Avenue Community Methodist Episcopal church.

"The Ministry of Solitude" was the morning sermon topic.

"Why did Jesus seek the ministry of solitude?" inquired Rev. Preston. "If I can find out why and when he sought it, it may help me to find the strengthening and calming influence of solitude in my own life.

"In all sorrow too much company is burdensome. Silence is never so golden as when we are in the presence of a soul whose trouble is now. Let us never forget that there is a silent healing sympathy whose influence may be only broken and disturbed by speech. The newly wounded spirit longs for silence and so longs to be alone.

"I know nothing more terribly painful than that sense of bewilderment which follows the first shock of some great affliction. It seems as if all things had been shaken to their very center. That is the moment to follow the Master's example and seek to be alone with God. The things that are seen may appear to be reeling, but the foundations of God stand sure.

Making Great Decisions

"You and I are often under the necessity of making great decisions, of choosing one road from many roads. We are frequently led up to crises where we know that decision is pregnant with tremendous issues. How do we approach such decisions? Jesus of Nazareth spent a night with God before making a great choice, and similar preparation is still needed by all who profess to be his own.

"Why not trust one's own judgment and common sense? The Master prayed—that is enough. It requires no argument to prove that a man will approach a great crisis and trial of judgment in greater fitness and readiness if he comes to it from the immediate presence of his God. I urge you then, before making any great decision to get apart with God."

Wise Man Learns He Still Has Job

GADSDEN, Ala.—Somebody is always starting something.

Two years ago the qualified voters of Etowah county elected T. B. Cohen to serve as chairman of the board of county commissioners. For two years matters went along swimmingly. Then some inquisitive person—possibly searching for something else—started snooping around. His "snooping" brought to light the startling fact that Cohen's predecessor, H. A. Wise, had been elected four years before to serve until January 1, 1923.

By some inexplicable oversight election officials, as well as both Cohen and Wise, had been under the impression that commissioners were elected for only a four-year term, whereas the law says it should be six.

The question now rages in Etowah county, Who is who, anyway?

Of 5100 truants examined in New York City last year, more than 4000 were found to have physical or mental defects.

MAIL IN MONEY! PLEA OF C. OF C.

Consumes Time and Postage When Dues Not Promptly Paid, Officials Say

The 932 members of the Glendale Chamber of Commerce have just received their due statements by mail. But few of them stop to realize that failure to pay up promptly, even by those who have the most kindly feeling for, and belief in the chamber, adds to the cost of routine work and deducts from the amount of money and effort that can be put into civic upbuilding, it is declared.

Sending out 932 notices cost $18.64 in postage alone, not to mention costs of paper and envelopes. Thirty dollars is not a high estimate of actual material costs for billing the members of the chamber.

Takes Up Time

Secretary James M. Rhoades, Assistant Secretary Eugene F. Sanders and their two young women assistants, Miss Bessie May Hale and Miss Lucille Miller, spend more or less time in keeping the accounts of the dues, as preparing and mailing the statements is a two or three-day job.

Secretary Rhoades admits that the membership could greatly reduce the routine, non-productive work of the chamber's personnel if even a small proportion of the membership would remit their dues without awaiting statements.

Miss Guila Darling New Class President

At the regular monthly business meeting of the Live Cole Sunday school class of the Central Christian church held last Friday night, Miss Guila Darling was elected president for the coming year, with the following named members chosen as her associates: Homer B. Miller, vice-president; Miss Margaret Overton, secretary and treasurer. Fred Thompson was selected as class teacher. It was finally decided that the class formerly known as the Alpha Omegas would become a part of the Live Cole class and that the original name of "Alpha Omega" be dropped.

Honor is the noble mind's distinguishing perfection.

SOCIAL LOBBY AT WASHINGTON OF LITTLE GOOD

Government Business Is Not Done In Full Dress, Says Correspondent

By J. E. JONES
Special to The Evening News

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—The prominence given by the press of the country to one of the issues of the Iowa senatorial campaign might almost lead uninformed people to believe that leading public officials, including members of the two branches of congress, are turning into social butterflies as a result of their residence in the national capital. As a matter of fact Washington is made up of the same kind of people that are found everywhere else in the United States, and senators and representatives are not apt to undergo any particular degree of change by reason of the fact that they live in Washington, where folks and society are about the same as that which they left at home.

The correspondent of this paper asked a number of old residents of the national capital, all business and professional people, this question: "What can you tell me about the social lobby of Washington?" In every case the answer was: "I never have seen it, and do not know that there is one." A senator or representative whose custom it was to spend night after night in his home town making the rounds of card parties, theaters and dances, would likely avail himself of the opportunities of a large city like Washington to indulge in the same kind of pleasures. It is significant, however, that most men of that kind are unable to secure a favorable verdict from the voters to permit them to move headquarters to Washington.

On the other hand, the hard-headed lawyer or business man who succeeds in the election is usually the man who made it a habit to stay home nights in his home town. When he gets to Washington he brings his fixed habits along with his other old possessions, rents a house or apartment, and settles down to his duties just the same as any other useful citizen. It is safe to say that half of all the men in the two branches of congress do not go out oftener after dark than the lawyers, teachers and merchants of Washington who have nothing to do with political matters. Presumably the "social lobby" works after dark! It is reasonable to assume that if the congressmen who are supposed to be victims of the social siren remain quietly at home and keep away from nightly parties that they are not being lulled into a state of unconsciousness regarding their sworn duty to their state and country.

Social Gatherings

Of course Washington has a larger number of social gatherings of significance than other cities, but that is merely because there are so many official affairs that are made more interesting by adding a social flavor to the gatherings. In order to meet this situation the President, for instance, is furnished a house that is as big as a hotel. But most men in congress are living on their salaries, and they are not able to splurge much after settling campaign expenses and other demands that continue to pour in from their homes.

The social lobby at Washington may be correctly compared to the social lobby of any city. In all of them there is apt to be suspicion that this lobby seeks favors at official headquarters. The business of its officials, and that is where lobbyists, citizens, countrymen, all—go when they have political chestnuts in the fire. Politicians are wary men and they are not spoiling perfectly good evenings or social pastimes talking shop after hours, or in permitting themselves to be "worked" by social schemers in full dress clothes.

The subject of the "social lobby" is usually good material for writers of fiction, and it often serves the purposes of political demagogues. Aside from that it is principally bunk.

Tariff in Conference

The tariff bill is now practically a year and a half late on the pre-election expectations of the party in power. All administrations where there has been a change of political power have been committed to a revision of the tariff. But the Fordney-McCumber bill has finally dragged its heavy corpus through both houses of congress and it has been committed to the conference committee made up of members from the house and senate. Some bitter controversial points remain in dispute between the two branches. There will be the usual display of fireworks over these matters, after which votes will be forced in both the senate and house. After that the president signs the bill and this completes the process of redemption for the party in power.

The "flexible" provisions of the tariff bill gives the president broad authority to increase and decrease duties. Agricultural protective duties have been raised materially, as also have rates on sugar and wool. The chemical schedule carries such high duties on coal tar dyes and synthetic chemicals and explosives as to practically constitute an embargo on foreign dyes. There has been a bitter fight in congress on these latter features of the bill because the German dye manufacturers were trying to beat back into the American market. While they were doing this the chemical interests of the United States undertook drastic measures and congress was told that a great trust had been built up in this country, and that all sorts of corruption existed in relation to it. But the Republican clothes the infant American dye industry with protection that is so high that the charge has followed that it is an embargo against the Germans.

The Republicans expect to have the bill entirely finished in order to go before the country with it in the fall elections. Careful unprejudiced Washington observers say that in order to do that they "will have to hurry."

Discussing Message

The president's message on the industrial situation was looked upon in Washington as a most extraordinary document, because it revealed more than any other message of late years, a series of rebuffs to President Harding that would have been looked upon almost as treason at other times in recent history. Of course, there is all kinds of partisan discussion of the document in Washington, as there is elsewhere, and that does not disturb the national political center. But there is genuine concern in Washington, and it is not the matter of a few days or weeks, over the fact that the representatives of the employing classes and the employes themselves have sought to ignore the head of the nation and to treat his patient efforts with very scant courtesy.

BLOOD AND SAND IS LAVISH FILM

Rodolph Valentino, Dashing Screen Lover, on Screen at T. D. L. Theatre

He is here—Rodolph Valentino, the dashing and romantic screen lover, in "Blood and Sand," the picture exquisite at the T. D. and L. today. It has long been awaited by the hundreds of picture fans here and Manager Ralph Allan has been one of the first exhibitors to show it, following the Los Angeles premiere.

It is said, "You have not seen Valentino until you have seen 'Blood and Sand.'" It is a lavish production, a deep story by Ibanez, author of "The Four Horsemen" and done by Paramount with Lila Lee and Nita Naldi supporting the star.

Romance is the keynote all through—and what a lover! You'll thrill at Rodolph's impassioned role as it rolls along through eight reels. Of course, there will be the season's biggest crowds to see it, so be early.

Allied Powers Seek to Close Hostilities

LONDON, Sept. 5.—With the Turks still pressing forward on the Anatolian battlefront, driving the Greeks before them, the allied powers intervened today in an effort to end hostilities. Great Britain, France and Italy are exchanging diplomatic views with the object of arrangeing an armistice and it is possible that the question of Near East peace will play an important part in the deliberations at the League of Nations meeting at Geneva.

The Turks are menacing Smyrna, east of Greek great headquarters on the coast, and indications today were that the Greeks will be forced out of Asia Minor entirely within another week unless hostilities end. The Greek military authorities are already prepared for the complete evacuation while the Hellenic government is appealing to the allied powers for assistance on the ground that their departure would leave the way open for widespread massacres of Greek Christians.

It was reported from Rome that the Greeks might attempt a stand along the frontiers of the Asiatic territory assigned to Greece under the treaty of Sevres, buit it is feared here that such a military move would be impossible. The Greek situation has been rendered more acute by the fall of Bilejek, near Mudania, where Greek reinforcements were previously landed from transports in the sea of Marmora.

Avalanche of Tinned Meats Hits Germany

BERLIN—Germany is being flooded by offers of American firms of tinned meat at half the price of the fresh German meat.

In consequence of the enormous rise of prices Berlin now consumes half as much meat as in the previous two months. Hundreds of butcher shops had to close, and about 500 butchers quit working altogether.

What The Kidneys Do

Their Unceasing Work Keeps Us Strong and Healthy.

All the blood in the body passes through the kidneys once every three minutes. The kidneys filter the blood. They work night and day. When healthy they remove about 500 grains of impure matter daily, when unhealthy some part of this impure matter is left in the blood. This brings on many diseases and symptoms—which vary widely but may include pain in the back, headache, nervousness, hot, dry skin, rheumatic pains, gout, gravel, disorders of the eyesight and hearing, dizziness, irregular heart, debility, drowsiness, dropsy, deposits in the urine, etc. But if you keep the filters right the danger is overcome. Doan's Kidney Pills have proven an effective kidney medicine.

J. M. Smith, 1571 East Thirty-third street, Los Angeles, Calif., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills put my kidneys in good condition and I gladly recommend them. I had severe backaches that made it difficult for me to do any stooping or lifting. My kidneys acted irregularly. I used Doan's Kidney Pills and they soon cured me. My back is now well and strong and I have had no further trouble."

The RIDDLE of the FROZEN FLAME

by M.E. & T.W. HANSHEW

Copyright, 1920 by Doubleday, Page & Company

"Well, you'll be able to rest yourself as much as you like this evening, Mr. Lake," he said, lightly, trying the muscles of his right arm with his left hand, and nodding as he felt them ride up, smooth and firm as ivory, under his coat sleeve. "I'm not in such bad fettle for an amateur, if anything in the nature of a scrap comes along, after all. Though I'm not anticipating any fighting, I can assure you. There's the morning papers, and the local rag with various lurid—and inaccurate—accounts of the whole ghastly affair. Merriton sems to have a good many friends in these parts and the local press is strong in his favor. But that's as far as it goes. At any rate, they'll keep you interested until we come home again. By the way, you might drop a hint to Borkins that I shall be writing some letters in my room tonight, and don't want to be disturbed, and that if he wants to go out, Dollops will post them for me and see to my wants; will you? I don't want him to 'suspicion' anything."

Mr. Narkom nodded. He snapped his notebook to, and bound the elastic round it, as Cleek crossed to the door and threw it open.

"I'll be going up to my room now, Lake," he said, in clear, high tones that carried down the empty hallway to whatever listener might be there to hear them. "I've some letters to write. One to my fiancee, you know, and naturally I don't want to be disturbed."

"All right," said Mr. Narkom, equally clearly. "So long."

Then the door closed sharply, and Cleek mounted the stairs to his room, whistling softly to himself meanwhile, just as Borkins rounded the corner of the dining room door and acknowledged his friendly nod with one equally friendly.

A smile played about the corners of the man's mouth, and his eyes narrowed, as he watched Cleek disappear up the stairs.

"Faugh!" he said to the shadows. "So much for yer Lunnon policeman, eh? Writin' love letters on a night like this! Young sap'ead!"

Then he swung upon his heel, and retraced his steps to the kitchen. Upstairs in the dark passageway, Cleek stood and laughed noiselessly, his shoulders shaking with the mirth that swayed him. Borkins' idea of a 'Lunnon policeman' had pleased him mightily.

CHAPTER XIX

What Took Place at "the Pig and Whistle

It was a night witout a moon. Great gray cloud banks swamped the sky and there was a heavy mist that blurred the outline of tree and fence and made the broad, flat stretches of the marshes into one impenetrable blot of inky darkness.

Two men, in ill-fitting corduroys and soiled blue jerseys, their swarthy necks girt about by vivid handkerchiefs, and their big-peaked caps pull d well down over their eyes, made their way along the narrow lane that led from Merriton Towers to Saltfleet Bav. At the function with Saltfleet road, two other figures slipped by them in the half-mist, and, after peering at them from under the screen of dark caps, sang out a husky "Goodnight, mates." They answered in unison, the bigger, broader one whistling as he swung along, his pace slackening a trifle so that the two newcomers might pass him and get on into the shadows ahead.

Once they had done so, he ceased his endless, ear-piercing whistle and turned to his companion, his hand reaching out suddenly and catching the sleeve nearest him.

"That was Borkins!" he said in a muttered undertone, as the two figures in front swung away into the shadows. "Did you see his face, lad?"

"I did," responded Dollops, with asperity. "And a 'fine specimen of a face it were, too! If I were born wiv that tacked on to me anatomy, I'd drown meself in the nearest pond afore I'd 'ave courage to survive it. . . . Yus, it was Borkins all right, Guv'nor, and the other chap wiv him, the one wiv the black whiskers and the lanting jor—"

"Hush, boy! Not so loud!" Cleek's voice cut into the whispered undertone, a mere thread of sound, but a sound to be obeyed. "I recognized him, too," interrupted Cleek. "My friend of the midnight visit, and the plugged pillow. I'm not likely to forget that face in a day's march, I can promise you. And with Borkins! Well, that was to be expected, of course. The next thing to consider is—what the devil has a common sailor or factory hand to do with a chap like Dacre Wynne? Or Merriton, for that matter. I never heard him say he'd any interest in factories of any kind, and I dare swear he hasn't. And yet, what's this dark stranger—as the fortune tellers say—doing, poking his nose into the affair, and trying to murder me, just because I happen to be down here to investigate the question of the Frozen Flames? . . . Bit of a problem, eh, Dollops? Frozen Flames, Country Squires, Dark Strangers who are sailormen, and a butler who has been years in the family service; there you have the ingredients for quite a nice little mix-up. Now, I wonder where those two are bound for?"

"'Pig and Whistle'," conjectured Dollops. "Leastways, tha's where old Black Whiskers is a-makin' for. Got friend Borkins in tow as well ter-night, so things ought ter be gettin' interestin'. Gawd! sir, if you don't looka fair cut throat I ain't ever seen one. "Makes me blood run cold jist ter squint at yer, it does! That there moustache 'ud git yer a fortin' on the stage, I swear. Mr. Narkom'd faint if 'e saw yer, an' I'm not so certing I wouldn't do a bunk meself, if I met yer in a dark lane, so to speak. 'Ow yer does the expression fair beats me."

Cleek laughed good-humoredly. The something theatrical in his make-up was gratified by the admiration of his audience. He linked his arm through the boy's.

"Birthright, Dollops, birthright!" he made answer, speaking in a leisurely tone. "Every man has one, you know. There is the birthright of princes—" he sighed. "Your birthright is a willing soul and an unwavering loyalty. Mine? A mere play of feature that can transform me from one man into another. A poor thing at best, Dollops, but . . . Hello! Lights ahead! What is it, my pocket guide book?"

"'Pig and Whistle'," grunted Dollops in a husky voice, glad of an excuse to hide his pleasure at Cleek's appreciation of his character.

"H'm. That's good. The fun commences. Don't forget your part, boy. We're sailormen back from a cruise to Jamaica and pretty near penniless. Lost our jobs, and looking for others. Told there was a factory somewhere in this part of the world that had to do with shipping, and have walked down from London. Took six days, mind; don't forget that. And a devilish long walk, too, I reckon! But that's by the way. Your name's Sam—Sam Robinson. Mine—Bill Jones . . . Our friends are ahead of us. Come along."

Whistling, they swung up to the brightly lit little public house, set there upon the edge of the bay. Here and there over the unruffled surface of the waters to the left of them, a light pricked out, glowing against the gloom. Black against the mouth of the harbor, as though etched upon a smoky background, a steamer swayed uneasily with the swell of the water at her keel, her nose touching the pier-head, a chain of lights outlining her cumbersome hulk. Men's voices made the night noisy, and numerous feet scuttled to and fro over the cobbles of the dockyard to where a handful of fishing boats were drawn up, only their masts showing above the landing, with here and there a ghostly wraith of sail.

Cleek paused a moment, drinking in the scene with his love of beauty, and then assumed his role of the evening. And how well he could play any role he chose!

He cleared his throat, and addressed his companion in broad cockney.

"Gawd's truf, Sammie!" he said. "If this fair don't look like a bit of 'ome. Ain't spotted the briny for a dog's age. Let's 'ave a drink."

LIKELY SUCCESSOR TO COLLINS

—Copyright, Underwood & Underwood

Richard Mulcahy, former minister of defense of the Irish republic, is mentioned as a likely successor to Michael Collins, slain head of the Irish. This photo was taken recently, and shows Captain Daly, I. R. ELIMINATION OF ANTENNA RESISTANCE

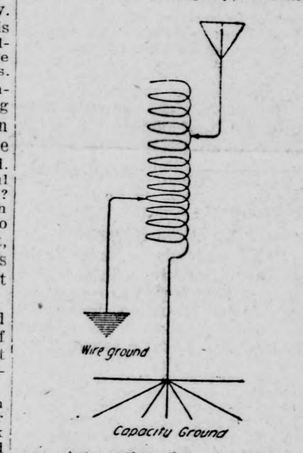
Mr. M. H. Beverage, research engineer, Radio Corporation of America, writing in a publication issued by his company, reveals some interesting data in connection with the above subject.



He had difficulty in providing a good ground at his own amateur station, owing to the dry, sandy soil. There was a small pond near the antenna, but not under it. A ground connection obtained in this pond by running several hundred feet of wire into it showed an antenna resistance of 60 to 70 ohms at wave lengths of 200 to 300 meters. This high resistance was undoubtedly caused by the antenna flux being forced to travel a considerable distance through very high resistance soil before reaching the low resistance ground wires in the pond.

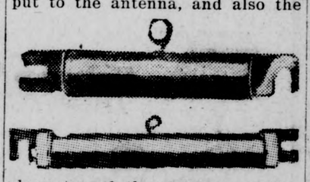
Mr. Beverage decided to install a counterpoise of four No. 14 B and S. copper wires running parallel with the antenna, flat top and directly beneath it, the parallel counterpoise wires being four feet apart and carefully insulated. The counterpoise also extended several feet beyond the ends of the antenna. When this counterpoise was substituted for the ground, the antenna resistance was reduced from approximately sixty ohms to ten ohms. Continuing the experiment and combining the counterpoise and the ground, as shown in the accompanying diagram, the antenna resistance was further reduced to four ohms. The resistance of the helix used to tune this antenna was three ohms, thus making a total of seven ohms. The above values were taken with a wave length of 280 meters. The method of tuning this combination will be shown in the next installment of these series.

APPARATUS AND DEVICES

By Ralph Brown, Radio Engineer

TRANSMITTING GRID LEAKS

The purpose of these grid leaks is to limit the potential accumulating on the grid of an oscillating tube, and thus govern the output to the antenna, and also the character of the antenna oscillations.



These resisters consist of a conductor wound upon a heat resisting silicate compound body developed to resist sudden and extreme temperature changes without becoming cracked, weakened or in any way injured. After being wound upon this compound it is embedded in a blue vitrous enamel which is fused to a dense, glassy structure at a temperature of about 1000 degrees Centigrade.

A metal foot is provided at each end of the grid leak to which the resister windings are connected and through which external connections are made. In addition, a mid tap is provided for securing half of the resistance.

They are made in two sizes, the smaller for tubes of 5 watts and the larger for power tubes from 50 to 250 watts.

Ohio School Kiddies Careful of Conduct

CINCINNATI, O.—School children in Cincinnati still believe in Santa Claus if their relative reluctance to "play hookey" during the month of December may be taken as an indication. In that month there is less truancy than in any other month of the school year, according to a report just filed by John J. O'Donnell, attendance officer of the board of education here.

The "merry month of May" leads all others in tempting the children away from the tiresome books to the great outdoors and freedom such as Huck Finn enjoyed, while June runs it a close second. It is then the call of nature hits the kiddies strongest, the report says.

Many delight more in giving presents than in paying their debts.

Jenny Lind's Brother Buried In New York

NEW YORK.—Charles Gustav William Lind, who died here recently in his seventy-third year, was intensely proud of the fact that he was the brother of Jenny Lind, "the Swedish Nightingale." His famous sister was twenty-nine and a traveling concert singer when he was born, yet he recalled vividly that she sent money home to her parents when he was a little child. He saved thousands of newspaper clippings telling of her triumphs. Part of his life Lind spent in the meat business, and in his declining years he worked as a janitor.

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE GREEN NEEDLES

(Copyright, 1922, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"Rat-a-tat-tat!" sounded a loud knock on the door of Uncle Wiggily's hollow stump bungalow one afternoon. The bunny rabbit gentleman had just fallen asleep after eating lunch, but he awakened with a jump when he heard the tapping on the door.

"Who's there?" asked Mr. Longears, his pink nose twinkling very fast; for he was all alone in the bungalow, Nurse Jane having gone to the moving pictures with Mrs. Wibblewobble, the duck, and the bunny thought perhaps the Skillery Scallery Alligator was trying to get in. "Who are you?" Uncle Wiggily wanted to know.

"I'm Baby Bnty, if you please," was the answer.

"Oh!" spoke Uncle Wiggily out loud. Then, to himself, he added: "Goodby sleep! I'll get no rest while Baby Bunty is here!" For the little rabbit girl, who had been found in a hollow stump, was a lively little animal, always wanting Ungle Wiggily to play tag or something like that.

"Come on out!" invited Baby Bunty. "I want you to come with me, Uncle Wiggily."

"Where to? What's going on? Why don't you come in and take a little sleep with me?" asked Uncle Wiggily as he opened the door and saw Baby Bunty on the steps.

"Oh, there's plenty of time to sleep tonight," Baby Bunty laughed. "I just heard there was a new family of rabbits who have moved into our woods to live during the winter. I want to go see if there are any little boy or girl rabbits with whom I can play, and I want you to come with me, Uncle Wiggily. Come along!"

She caught the bunny gentleman by his paw and fairly pulled him from the bungalow, laughing with glee the while. Uncle Wiggily would much rather have gone to sleep again, but there was little use in trying that when Baby Bunty was around.

"Well, I suppose I ought to go and call on the new rabbit family," agreed Mr. Longears, giving his pink nose a little upside down twinkle to take the sleep from his eyes. "Now don't go too fast, Baby Bunty."

"I won't," promised the little bunny girl, but for all that she ran on rather quickly, and Uncle Wiggily had to run also, to keep up. And he hurried so that he caught his coat on the sticking-out branch of a tree and tore a hole in it. I mean he tore a hole in his coat, not in the tree, you understand.

"Oh, dear," sighed the bunny gentleman when he saw the rip. "Now I can't go calling on a strange family. I can't go with a hole in my coat. You go along without me, Baby Bunty!"

"No! No!" exclaimed the little rabbit girl. "I'll mend that hole in your coat and it will be as fine as ever. Sit down on this stump!"

"How can you mend a torn coat when you have neither needle nor thread?" asked Uncle Wiggily.

"I know where some flax grows," said Baby Bunty. "It is from the long fibers of the flax plant that linen cloth and linen thread are made. I'll get a stem of flax, soak it in water and pound it until I have a strong thread." The little rabbit girl ran on ahead, and soon came back with a stem of flax bearing blue flowers. She soaked and pounded the steam between two stounes until she could peel off long threads, and flax thread, you know, is very strong indeed, for it is linen.

"But what will you do for a needle " asked Uncle Wiggily.

"I'll get a green needle from the pine tree," said Baby Bunty.

Surely enough, all around grew pine trees with long, thin and sharp green needles. Baby Bunty fastened one end of her linen thread to a green needle with a bit of pine gum, and then she began to sew up the rip in Uncle Wiggily's coat. Oh, but I must have a thimble! I forgot about that!" she cried, as the needle pricked her paw.

"There are no thimbles in the woods," said Uncle Wiggily.

"This will do nicely for a thimble!" laughed Baby Bunty, holding up the empty shell of a snail. Surely enough, the snail shell fitted over part of her paw, and she could easily push the pine needle through the cloth of the rabbit gentleman's coat.

He caught his coat

"There you are—you can hardly see the hole," said Baby Bunty, as she sewed it shut. "Now come calling with me on the new rabbits!" Uncle Wiggily had no other excuse for not going and he and Baby Bunty paid their visit, welcoming the strange rabbits to the woods. There were a little boy and girl rabbit and Baby Bunty had fun playing with them.

Soon it was time for Uncle Wiggily and Baby Bunty to go home. And on their way back the Fuzzy Fox chased them. But Uncle Wiggily, holding Bunty's paw, ran fast, and as they passed under a pine tree with the Fox following, all of a sudden the tree showered down a thousand green, sharp needles. These needles fell on the Fox and pricked him very much, so that he howled and yowled, saying:

"Ouch! I guess I'd better not chase Uncle Wiggily any more!"

And he didn't so the bunny's ears weren't nibbled. And I think Baby Bunty was very smart and cute, don't you? So if the nutmeg grater doesn't want to dance with the banana and scratch its skin all criss-cross, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and the hollow log.

ASSERTS CHURCH TROUBLE MAKER

People Made Dissatisfied by Religious Organizations Pointing Out Ideals

"The church has always been the greatest trouble maker in history!"

This startling exclamation was made Sunday morning at the Central Christian church.

"The church has made people dissatisfied by showing them better and higher ideals," continued Rev. C. A. Cole. "The important question is: Will the church, having created this spirit of social unrest, step aside and allow the professional agitator to come and usurp the place belonging to it, or will the church finish the task it began so long ago?

"I am ready to grant and to argue that the church is not to take up the work of any social agency. It is the business of the church to preach the principles laid down by Jesus, permitting every man to apply them as he may think best. All that the church may insist upon is that he shall be dominated by the spirit of Jesus, and that he is honestly working to bring in the Kingdom of God.

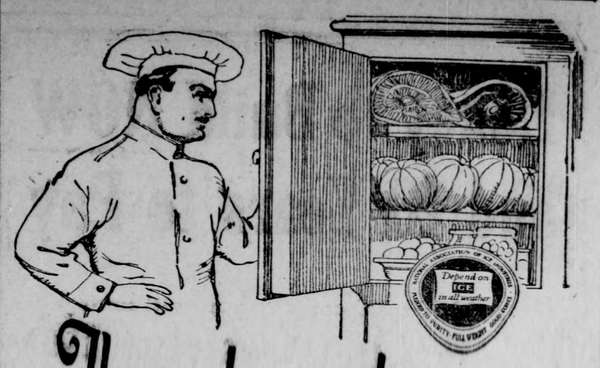
"But every man in the church must know his brother's burden and must give heed to his call.

Broken Old Age

"Thousands of working people, even in America, with its countless blessings, go through life like lean, warped animals with nothing before them but the curse of a broken old age. The average business man at 40 considers himself in his prime, but many workmen at 40 have passed the dead line. Many large corporations will not hire a man over 40.

The real curse of poverty is not so much lack of money as it is lack of opportunity. The worst kind of poverty is that which calls for the sacrifice of the inner life. It is bad enough to have to go to bed hungry, but it is far worse to starve the soul. Poverty means more than destitution and sickness and hunger. The lack of living wages, the back-breaking toil, the insufficient food, the inability to pay doctor bills and rent, these are not so terrible to the poor as is the apparent hopelessness and futility of all effort.

"If it was legitimate Christian work for Christ to heal an individual, why is it not legitimate work for Christians to heal a thousand people collectively?"



The restaurant man takes Ice always

You'll never find the restaurant man without a well-filled ice-box all the year round. It's a plain matter of business economy with him. He knows that what he spends for ice is more than repaid in the expensive food he saves.

Many housewives can take a lesson from him. The regular use of ice in the home at all seasons is true economy as well as a good health measure.

FULFILLING PROMISES BY PERFORMANCE.

Promises may get friends, but it is performance that must keep them. —Feltham

The test of business vitality is in performance, not in promises. If this were not so, anyone could attain success without effort, simply by setting up an imposing sign or publishing impressive promises of fair dealing.

But few succeed, while many fail. The law is "give and take," and those who chiefly take, without giving "value received," never attain the heights.

Because its promises have been conscientiously and consistently carried out in performance, the L. G. Scovern Co. has succeeded.

OLD VACATIONS AND NEW

A few miles from the colony where I sometimes spend my summer there is a little island in the river on which are a few primitive summer camps. The people from these camps often come up the river for provisions. The men wear old flannel shirts and flannel trousers, or the dilapidated trousers of old city suits; the women wear old clothes of various sorts; the children usually have on bloomers and are barefooted. Against the background of our summer colony they stand out very strikingly and many are the curious, and frequently amused and superior glances, they receive.

Twenty-five years ago those people would have been typical summer vacationists in this very place.

Twenty-five years ago, if middle class people went away for the summer at all, they did just what these people are doing, lived in primitive houses and wore out their old clothes.

Four Times the Rent

In our colony is a cottage with bathroom, electric lights, garage and attractive furniture which rents for $600. Twenty-five years ago that same cottage, minus the bathroom, the electric lights and, needless to say, the garage, rented for $150.

We are often told that the high cost of living is partly due to the cost of high living and we usually resent that statement as capitalist's propaganda to explain the results of their own profiteering.

But there is more to it than that. In many directions we regard what used to be luxuries as absolute necessities, and this business of the summer vacation is a perfect example.

Old Clothes for Sport Clothes

Twenty-five years ago if the average middle class family went away at all they went to a very simple summer cottage costing less than $1000 or renting for not over $150. Very likely they went only for a month. As for sport clothes, why of course they wore out their old clothes. And, as they picked blueberries and dug clams and fished and fetched their own milk and cream and eggs from the nearest farmer, it probably cost them less to live than in the city.

Today it is almost a sina qua non for the middle class family in the same relative financial position to go away for the whole summer. "The children need it, you know, after their hard school year." It is also almost a sina qua non that the cottage should have electric lights and a bathroom and a garage. And, instead of wearing out old clothes on the vacation, a whole new wardrobe of sport clothes and beach clothes must be laid in—the sport suit, the white flannel skirt, the smart middies, the white shoes, the sport hats for the women and the golf suits for the men.

Do We Get More Fun?

As for the living expenses. Well, in our summer colony they are about one-quarter higher than they are at home in a first-class suburb. There is only one grocery store—with the inevitable result. The milk, which is delivered now, is several cents more a quart than at home. The farmers charge, at least, city prices for their products. Meat, which we all think we must have once or twice a day, soars to wild heights.

And with it all do we get more happiness than in the old simple days of blueberrying and old clothes and primitive houses? I wonder. No, I don't.

Diet and Health

By Lulu Hunt Peters, M.D.

Author of "Diet and Health, with Key to the Calories"

VACCINATION

Do you believe in vaccination? Of course you don't. How could any intelligent reading layman believe in anything that has been pictured as being so revolting and so pernicious and so deadly as vaccination?

I do not blame you for not believing in it. I am positive that if I did not have access to both sides of the question, if I did not know that the reports and propaganda given out in the anti-vaccination literature are half truths and distortions of the truths, I would be an ardent disbeliever in vaccination and an opposer of it myself.

The medical profession as a class is too prone to be impatient with people who disbelieve in vaccination and diphtheria antitoxin and other absolutely tried and true medical means of combating terrible diseases and epidemics. They forget that the layman's education on this subject has been acquired through his reading in the lay magazines and newspapers, and that a large percentage of the things he reads are written by those who oppose these methods and who apparently, oppose anything that is sanctioned by the regular medical profession.

You will always find that the antis are always much more active than the pros. Even though it is a law, you hear much more anti-prohibition talk, for instance, than you hear talk for prohibition, although the majority of us believe that theoretically and practically prohibition is good.

I do not doubt that the anti-vaccionationists are sincere in their belief that vaccination is harmful. To them, smallpox does not exist or there is no possibility of an epidemic of smallpox. The large majority of them have never seen a case.

No one should be censured for trying to convert another person to his views when it is done in a fair manner. It is not fair, however, to give evidence from a certain source that supports one's own side and to withhold evidence which shows one's conclusions are wrong—in other words, to give half-truths. It is well known that a half-truth is more pernicious than a lie.

I am going to give two evidences that anti-vaccinationists do this unfair thing. I heard a leader in the anti-vaccinationist movement in Los Angeles—a man who is a practitioner in a system of therapeutics that is not licensed to vaccinate—quote Osler, and quote him correctly, to the effect that the terrible venereal disease, syphilis, could be transmitted through vaccination. He looked up in triumph. "This," he said, "is what one of their own authorities says about it!"

Now had he been honest, he would have given the rest of the paragraph in Osler. He didn't because the rest of the paragraph he quoted explained that this terrible disease could be transmitted by vaccination if the vaccine were taken from a person who had syphilis. Osler explains that a doctor had found this to be true by experimenting upon himself for the benefit of humanity—vaccinating himself from the vaccination of a child who was known to have syphilis. When it was thus demonstrated that this could be done, vaccination from arm to arm stopped, and only vaccine from animals free from disease is used now. Had this anti-vaccinationist given the whole truth, it would have put a new light on the subject, wouldn't it?

Another instance of half-truths is the propaganda that is being circulated about the fearful scourge of small pox in the Philippines the last few years. They are quoting that more than 50,000 deaths have occurred there, and the inference is that these deaths occurred among the vaccinated because there is supposed to be a thorough system of vaccination in the Islands. The part of the report that they suppress is this: The deaths are recorded almost entirely among the unvaccinated! —the percentage of deaths among the unvaccinated being 93 per cent and among the vaccinated only 7 per cent.

This 7 per cent that occurred among the vaccinated was probably due to the fact that a virulent strain of smallpox had developed which the ordinary immunity from vaccination was unable to neutralize.

The records show, further, that 89 per cent of these deaths occurred among unvaccinated children, the majority of whom were born after 1913. When the systematic vaccinating was resumed in 1918, smallpox again disappeared.

The whole truth puts a different light on the subject than does the half-truth, doesn't it?

A Simple Company Luncheon

Even though we have but a few intimate friends in for luncheon, we like to have everything dainty and to serve something that will be easy to prepare. When planning such menus care should be exercised to select as many dishes as possible that can be prepared "beforehand." thus leaving the hostess free to enjoy her friends. When good wholesome food appears as if by magic, guests have the feeling that they can relax and be sure that the hostess is ready to join in the fun of the occasion.

Just because nearly every luncheon given nowadays has for its first course a fruit cup of fruit cocktail, is no reason why you too must have one for your simple luncheon.

The following menu would be satisfying, providing each dish is perfectly prepared and nicely served.

Potato Salad Spiced Beets
Quick Twin Mountain Muffins
Luncheon Apples,
Molasses Puffs
Coffee
Candy Nuts
(Luncheon for six.)

Potato Salad—Mix one and one-half cups cold boiled potatoes, cubed with three-fourths cups diced celery, two hard boiled eggs, diced, three sweet pickles. diced, one canned pimiento. diced. one tablespoon diced onion. Then add one teaspoon salt and one-half cup highly seasoned mayonnaise dressing. Toss all lightly together and serve very cold on crisp lettuce leaves.

Spiced Beets—To three large, cooked beets. sliced, add four tablespoons vinegar, heated with three whole cloves, one-half teaspoon salt. dash of pepper and one tablespoon sugar. Allow to stand one hour before serving.

Quick Twin Mountain Muffins—Mix two cups flour with two teaspoons baking powder, one-fourth teaspoon salt and four tablespoons sugar. Beat one egg until very light, add it to one cup sweet milk and then stir these liquid ingredients into the dry ones. Beat two minutes. Add one tablespoon melted butter, stir in thoroughly and fill well buttered muffin pans one-half full. Bake in moderate oven twenty minutes.

Luncheon Apples—Wash, peel and core six apples. Place in a flat-bottomed saucepan. in which you have mixed one cup water with one and one-half cups sugar. Cook the apples, turning often until tender. remove from the syrup and place in serving dish. Fill the center with one-half marshmallow. Add one-eight teaspoon cinnamon and two teaspoons butter to the syrup in pan and cook five minutes, or until it thickens. Pour over and around the apples. Decorate with marshmallows, cut into quarters. Serve warm.

Molasses Puffs—Mix one-half cup molasses and one-half cup sugar. Add one-third cup hot water and three tablespoons melted butter, or other cooking fat. Beat one egg until light and add it to first mixture and beat thoroughly. Sift two cups flour, one teaspoon ginger. one teaspoon soda, one-half teaspoon cinnamon together. and add to the rest of the ingredients, mixing well. Fill well-buttered muffin pan three-fourths full. Bake in a moderate oven for twenty-five minutes. Ice with boiled icing.

ANSWERED LETTERS

Interested—To give all the particulars of the henna tinting will take more space than can be spared at this time. This information can be mailed to you, however, if you request it. Be sure to include a stamped and addressed envelope.

Reader—A homemade corn plaster consists of a thick piece of felt cut round, with a small circle cut out in its center to accommodate the corn.

Polly P.—The white spots on nails are a result of poor circulation. A bleach for them is made by mixing equal parts of pitch and myrrh. To remove this mixture from the nails later, use any kind of oil or plain lard.

Hopeful—A fine grained skin is the result of so many things it is difficult to advise any one, in so small a space on how to attain it. The digestion must be good. There must be free elimination. The skin must receive proper care. A daily bath, cleansing of the pores of the face with creams, after which the pores should be closed and the skin kept firm—these are all healthful measures.

Mary—You can lose ten pounds without making many sacrifices in your diet. The reason you did not succeed before was because you did not know what foods were fattening. Try whole wheat bread instead of that made from white flour, and if your weight is not changed, eliminate all potatoes and pastry for a time. I know a man who lost nine pounds in two weeks with no greater change in his diet than what I am advising here.

Mrs. R. A.—There is nothing to do when the hair has been bleached but to wait for nature to restore the color. The only comfort I can offer your friend is to tell her that she has passed through the worst period, and, from now on, her hair will look more natural each week. The only other thing to do is to dye it to the natural shade. But that is not advisable.

Irene—A curling fluid is made by dissolving gum tragacanth with hot water, so it will be the consistency of a thin mucilege. Dampen hair with this before you form it into the waves. The hair should be bound so it will dry without disturbing the curls or waves, after which it can be combed out and shaken to throw off the dried particles from the glue. Hair done this way will often stay curled for several days.

(Tomorrow—Feeding the Fingernails.)

All inquiries addressed to Miss Forbes in care of the "Beauty Chats" department will be answered in these columns in their turn. This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. So, if a personal or quicker reply is desired, a stamped and self-addressed envelope must be enclosed with the question.—The Editor.

Book Reviews

Carolyn Wells' latest detective story is "The Mystery Girl," dedicated to Huber Gray Buller, "a grave and reverend seigneur who possesses the added grace of a rare taste in mystery stories." This latest "Fleming Stone" story is thought, by some, far to surpass any of the author's previous efforts, while others less easily satisfied, or more critically blase, have found it "not so good."

But, be this as it may, the number of entirely new ideas in mystery murders, amid the host of them (clever. melodramatic and mediocre) continually being published, are not so infrequent as they are surprising, and a long, strong icicle, sharp and unbending, would leave less evidence of guilt even than the many insidious varieties of poison, convicting no one, for, in these days of scientific treachery, this method would be the more ingenious, so thought Carolyn Wells, quite probably.

"Miss Mystery" is mentally suspected, convicted and acquitted, but, just as circumstances seem unavoidably to be hemming her in, Fleming Stone is called, and "never in his career as a detective has so amazing a solution been arrived at, nor a happier result produced."

Both faculty and students of the University of Michigan are keenly anxious that Robert Frost accept for a second year the fellowship in creative art, which was inaugurated there last September. In the words of the department of English: "The tribute of reverential affection the students have paid to Mr. Frost is not less impressive than the hearty, sympathetic kindliness with which he has entered into our lives."

"From Printer to President," the story of Warren G. Harding, by Sherman A. Cuneo. lifelong friend and fellow editor, is announced for immediate publication.

The Duttons have ready for immediate publication a new volume in their musical series, the Musician's Bookshelf, in which are now listed half a dozen or more volumes of deepest interest to musicians of all kinds. This new volume is on "Pedaling in Pianoforte Music." and is the work of Algernon H. Lindo. an English authority upon that instrument. He thinks that the correct management of the pedals is of the greatest consequence in pianoforte playing, calls it, indeed, a "subtle art," and devotes a long introductory chapter to the exposition of the principles of pedaling, the remainder of the book dealing with the practical application of those principles and with the special pedal treatment required for certain periods and composers. The text carries apt musical illustrations.

They Say That

Crops in general have not made particular improvement east of the Mississippi river or in the western part of the corn belt, but conditions have slightly improved in the Rocky Mountains and Pacific coast states during August, according to the reports of correspondents of the United States department of agriculture. Washington and Oregon have received sufficient rain to relieve the drought and conditions are still favorable in California. A continued drought in the southwest and western Texas and New Mexico has resulted in deterioration of ranges.

Small grains are still being threshed in the east as far south as the Chesapeake bay but the bulk of the wheat threshing is finished south of the Great Lakes. Unsatisfactory yields are reported in the Ohio valley with quality only fair. In the Dakotas fair weather has favored harvest of small spring grains and in Montana of winter grains. Threshing returns in that state show a high quality of rye and in South Dakota the quality of the spring wheat is good so far, with relatively light rust damage. Threshing has been delayed by rains in Iowa and Nebraska. Threshing of wheat is practically completed in Oklahoma and a very low yield is indicated. Wheat harvest is nearing completion in Utah and Wyoming, is well under way in Idaho and the harvesting of barley and oats progressing. Considerable oats will be cut for hay in Wyoming. In California the harvest of the grain crop has been completed with good yields. In Washington and Oregon winter wheat is mostly harvested, spring wheat and oats in those states are too far advanced to be benefited by recent rains and production may be about half of normal.

Plowing for fall seeding is in progress in Virginia and the western part of the corn belt but has been hindered by a hard, dry soil near the Ohio river. Movement of wheat to market has been slowed up in both Kansas and Missouri and in Kansas considerable grain is going into the stack on account of low prices.

The cotton crop continues to suffer rather severely from the weevil, especially in Georgia where the weather has been more or less cloudy. Picking is general in the southern half of Texas and near the Gulf coast in the eastern part of the belt.

East of the Mississippi river corn has progressed fairly well.

SERIAL FROM BIBLE

After printing a weekly serial from the Bible for three months, the Topeka State Journal finds this to be the most successful feature the paper has ever published. Inquiries and comment concerning it have come to the editors from every state in the union, and from numerous foreign countries. Following the lead of the Journal, several other Kansas papers are also publishing the Bible. Publication of the Bible by the Journal was undertaken at the suggestion of Dr. Charles M. Sheldon, author of "In His Steps." Each installment consists of about 3000 words, the Weymouth text of the New Testament being used.

STILL IN STONE AGE

The inhabitants of a vast region in the arid interior of Australia are still in the stone age and an effort is being made to keep them there. Sixty-five thousand square miles have been set apart as a sanctuary for the natives and no white men are allowed to enter the sanctuary. These natives fashion their crude weapons and implements of stone and wood, and are entirely ignorant of the use of metal. Cannibalism is still in full force among the natives of the Everard ranges and they have to be constantly on the march to obtain food.

OIL FROM SHALE ROCK

A new machine for reducing oil from shale rock is at work near Denver. The invention is a series of revolving retorts, heated by oil burners. The shale rock is dumped in the hopper and comes out at the rear of the machine as black dust made up of hydrocarbons of high commercial value. According to the president of the Colorado School of Mines, the invention will revolutionize the oil industry.

MEYERS AND STONE CLASH IN RING ON WEDNESDAY

Modern Woodmen Offer Fine Bout Card Including Essick and King

A return bout between Kid Essick of Glendale and Burbank King of Burbank has been arranged for the Modern Woodmen's boxing affair to be staged tomorrow night at the I. O. O. F. hall, Broadway at Orange street.

The Kid was to have faced Young Woodley of Glendale, but Woodley has left for "regions unknown" without the formality of saying good-bye. As soon as Carrol Hare and O. M. Clinton, who are managing the affair, heard of Woodley's unannounced departure, they booked King for the bout.

King, who fought Essick about a month ago, is to have his usual constant smile, according to the promoters, and will be in good form to give the local Kid a more strenuous battle than on the former occasion.

Twice Postponed

It is about the Johnny Myers-Young Stone bout that local fans wax rhetorical. The bout has been twice postponed, and it is promised that this time it will really be fought.

Stone has never been in as good condition as at present. Although he is a little under weight, he is faster than ever, and fans who visit his training quarters are predicting the downfall of one Johnny Myers when Stone cuts loose tomorrow night.

Myers, however, is not one to be taken lightly. The local fireman-fighter is a man of long experienced in the squared circle, tough as iron, and one of those rare fighters who uses his head. Johnny is no strong back; weak mind artist, but a real fighter. San Fernando Valley can hand Johnny anything dangerous, and a real bout is to be expected when the two clash.

Promise Action

What should develop into an entertaining little affair is the Paddy Mulligan-Young Welch bout. Mulligan, who hails from Pasadena, is a short and broad little Irishman of about 112 pounds, while Welch is tall, although of about the same weight.

Hare and Clinton state that nothing short of a cyclone will prevent the bouts from being run off as scheduled, and they promise that the affair will be snappy from beginning to end, with no long delays between bouts.

Local Woodmen Win Second In Bowling

The bowling team of the local chapter, Modern Woodmen of America, took second place in the bowling tournament of the Southern California Woodmen at San Pedro Saturday, Sunday and Monday. The local team, captained by O. M. Clinton, ran high in the scoring, and placed second to the Vernon five, who won the tournament.

TEDDY O'HARA TO BOX SALVADORE AT HOLLYWOOD

Lightweights Are Expected to Furnish Good Go; Notes of Various Sports

Frank Crowley, matchmaker de luxe of the Hollywood American legion boxing stadium, has announced that he has arranged one of the classiest cards of the year for Friday night of this week. Phil Salvadore, the slashing scrapper who recently returned to Southern California from a successful invasion of New York City and who is regarded as one of the leading 133-pounders of the country, will hook up in the main event with Teddy O'Hara, who has been making a name for himself within the past few months along the coast. The bout is generally looked upon as a championship affair for the Pacific Coast lightweight title and will undoubtedly attract many of the old-timers to the ringside.

Real Slugging Bee

"Racehorse" Roberts, who last week obtained a draw in his battle with "Bill" Pelky of the Philipine Islands, is booked to appear in the semi-windup against Jimmy O'Gatty. Both of these middleweights are first class performers and a real slugging bee is liable to result. The remainder of the card will include Eddie Roberts vs. Jimmy Meyers, Pete Herman vs. Alec MacDonald, Pancho Romero vs. Joe Dunn, Bud Omar vs. George Gilmore, Johnny McGraw vs. Frankie Tierney.

Takes First Place

Don Morrison of Los Angeles copped first place Sunday in the monthly target "shoot" held at the Los Angeles Gun club, after turning in a perfect record of 100 straight hits. Second place went to N. W. Warman, whose mark was 97x100, followed by L. B. Clarke with 95x100. Fourth and fifth places went to E. M. Nutting and A. L. Reed, respectively.

Vernon Main Event

Joe Benjamin, lightweight boxer who holds the distinction of belonging to the "stable" of Jack Kearns, will appear tonight in the main event at Vernon against Eddie Mahoney. The latter has been plugging along for a number of weeks, finally gaining the right to participate in a main event through his victory over Bobby Allen in the semi-windup. In tonight's semi-final battle Ermie Goozeman and Georgie Spencer will face each other for another settling of their differences. This bout should attract as much attention as the main event itself. Other bouts scheduled for tonight will include Solly Seaman vs. Johnny Jordan, Benny Kilroy vs. Herb Ryan, Larry Murphy vs. Kid Daro, Ernie Owen vs. Bobby Gray and George Bruce vs. Charley Reigler.

Tagging All Bases

Taking due advantage of the Yanks' idleness, the Browns threw the Indians for the loss of two ball games, 10 to 3 and 12 to 1, and moved to within a single game of the lead. Williams cracked his thirty-third home run of the season.

The Cubs fell headlong into the second division by dropping two to the Reds, 4 to 3, and 4 to 0. Keck's pitching made the Cubs look goofy in the second and Krug lost the opener by dropping a fly ball in the ninth.

Faber and Robertson pitched the White Sox into a double verdict over the Tigers, 3 to 2, and 6 to 2, in the battle for third place.

Add to life's unsolvable mysteries the fact that the Philadelphians beat the Dodgers in a doubleheader, 5 to 4 and 7 to 6.

The Senators and Athletics split the decision two ways, Rommell scoring his 22d victory of the season with a seventh place club, 5 to 4, and Mogridge shutting out the visitors in the second, 2 to 0.

LOCALS LOSE GAME TO CLEARYS IN TEN INNINGS

Glendale Puts Up Hard Fight but Is Forced to Take Short End of Score

In a game in which the lead changed hands several times, and which lasted through ten innings, the Cleary Athletic club last Sunday handed the Glendale Merchants their fourth defeat of the season in the form of a 9 to 8 score at the White Sox park in Los Angeles.

During the early stages of the game, with Harris on the mound for the Merchants, the locals piled up a lead of five runs by the end of the fifth. In the next frame, Cleary's boys brought in three. Glendale added one in the seventh, while in the eighth the Clearys brought in four more, giving them a one-run lead. The Merchants overcame this with one run in the ninth, and with the score tied, the game was extended another inning.

Makes Winning Score

In the tenth, with no outs, Armstrong, shortstop for the Clearys drove out a single, stole second, and came in for the winning score when King made a high throw to second. Cobb, playing centerfield, made a desperate try for the ball, but was unable to get it back to King in time. The locals tightened up and no further runs were recorded, but the damage was done and the game ended with the 9 to 8 decision in favor of the Clearys.

To start the game off big, Myers, Glendale second baseman, drove out a home run in the first. Myers played an A-1 game all the way through, batting .500, and making three of the Merchants' tallies. Acosta, local third baseman, played a million-dollar game, holding third in lively fashion, and knocking out a double.

Harris, who started the game in the box for the Merchants, laid them down the groove in good style until the eighth inning, when he loosened and started walking the Clearys, and allowing too many hits. Cobb put in Walt Heidler, who has been out of the game since the first Cleary-Glendale contest. Walt pitched fairly good ball, but due to his absence from the diamond, was not up to his usual good form.

The Clearys played a much tighter game than the two former exhibitions they put up when battling the locals. Hastings, catcher for the Clearys, who injured his thumb at Verdugo Park, August 16, sustained severe injuries to the member in the first inning of Sunday's contest, and had to be removed. Danning, regularly at second base, took Hastings' place, and filled the gap in good fashion.

Local fans who attended the game witnessed one of the best games the Merchants have ever played, and, although the locals lost, they gave the Clearys the scrap of their lives.

The WORLD OVER

By FRANKLIN B. MORSE

PACIFIC SPORTS SERVICE

Willie Ritchie, former lightweight champion of the world, is in the midst of a struggle trying to make up his mind whether or not to try a "come-back" in the prize ring. This information will come as a surprise, and perhaps as a shock, to many of Ritchie's friends and admirers who thought that this once game fighter was out of the running for good and all, and that he had the horse sense to know the fact.

It is the lure of gold that has started the bug in Willie's bonnet. He says that he had offers from eastern promoters to go into the ring with some of Bennie Leonard's recent antagonists, and the remuneration therefor will run from $100,00 to $150,000. No doubt it is a difficult matter to pass by such a tempting opportunity to gather in the shekels even though the end of it may spell defeat and humiliation. Ritchie already has essayed one come-back. It will be remembered that a couple of years ago he went into the ring with Bennie Leonard and Bennie gave Ritchie one of the toughest times of his life, although he was not quite able to give Ritchie the down and out blow.

At all events, it was thought that this experience had demonstrated to Ritchie the fact that his days as a first-class fighting man were behind him, but evidently it has not unless Ritchie's friends can prevail on him to forego any further attempts. Ritchie is well fixed in worldly goods. He has a fat bank account, and a number of apartment houses in San Francisco that return him a comfortable income. Besides this he is proprietor of a successful automobile tire business which is doing much better than keep the wolf from the door.

No gamer boy ever stepped into the ring than Ritchie, and probably the same can be said of both Battling Nelson and Ad Wolgast, but all ring followers know the pitiable spectacle that both of the latter presented when they persisted in continuing their fighting after they were through. Second and third raters were making slaughtering blocks out of these two boys, who in their prime, were among the greatest ring men the game had ever known.

One of the things that is deterring Ritchie from definitely making up his mind to launch in his contemplated adventure is the fact that he has a wife and two children. Mrs. Ritchie is very decidely opposed to any plan which contemplates thrusting her husband back into the ring again, for she, at least, feels that beatings will be the inevitable result after so long an absence from the ring. Ritchie is not old as far as the years of a man's life are concerned, but he is quite aged when you figure his years from an athletic point of view.

Just how soon he will come to a decision remains to be seen, but it will not be long delayed, as the promoters are anxious for him to settle the matter and let them know where he stands so they can go on with their plans.

GLENDALE FACTORY ROBBED OF $1500

Baldwin Shirt Plant In the Southern Section Loses Quantity of Material

Silk and white shirting materials valued at $1500 were stolen early today by a band of thieves, believed to have been led by a woman, who operated from an automobile parked in the vicinity of San Fernando road and Brand boulevard, where the Baldwin Custom Shirt factory is located.

Entrance to the Gateway market building, in which the plant is located, was gained by the use of a "jimmy" on a north window, according to the police, who are investigating. The wholesale robbery was discovered by Ralph W. Dick, foreman of the factory, when he opened the establishment this morning and found all of the valuable pieces of goods gone.

George B. Karr, owner, estimates the loss at $1500, more than $1000 of which was in silk goods. Several uncompleted shirts also were stolen. No insurance is carried, he states.

COMMENT THAT'S ALL

Hundreds Home Again
Purchasing Agents Here
What Does Glendale Need?
Homage to Richardson

By Gil A. Cowan

HUNDREDS of Glendale folks are home today from a summer's vacation by the sea or in the mountains. More will be arriving all of this week and by the middle of the month the old town will be teeming with activity—a lot of it sunburned, but happy to be back.

There is something good about going away for a while, but the return to the city of homes has its compensating effect.

Some thoughtful person once wrote a folk song which ended with the phrase, "There's no place like home."

Sad is the life of one who has no home, folks, and that is why everybody seems to happy here. Thep all have homes.

Sunday evening I motored over to San Bernardino. There are too few homes in that locality All of the railroad people, seemingly, live in hotels. No wonder they are dissatisfied.

Yesterday I visited the beach and only in the tent city did there seem to be happiness. There was a temporary home. If you have ever visited the resort hotels you will agree with me they are as stiff as a starched shirt—and equally uncomfortable in warm weather.

Glendale was signally honored yesterday by a visit of the Los Angeles and San Francisco Purchasing Agents' associations.

To J. C. McQuiston of 212 West Acacia street, City Purchasing Agent Dixon and others great credit is due for bringing this representative group of men to "the fastest growing city in America."

It was good to hear those Bay City boys give a "Tiger" to Glendale.

Incidentally, the purchasing agents were greatly impressed with California's Pageant of Progress, now at Exposition Park in Los Angeles. If you haven't seen this great show, take the earliest opportunity to attend. The chances are you will then want to go again—and not to see the bathing girls, either.

The Pageant's chief attraction is the liberal education it gives the public in general.

What are the five things Glendale needs now?

This question will be decided at today's forum meeting of the Chamber of Commerce.

It is well worth your consideration, folks.

Did you lend your presence to the meeting?

Tonight editors of southern California will pay homage to Friend William Richardson, Republican nominee for governor, at a banquet in the City Club rooms, Los Angeles.

It was in San Bernardino that Mr. Richardson first embarked in his business career and there he successfully published a newspaper.

There are scores of newspaper men in these parts who have either worked for or with Friend Richardson and they bespeak his ability to fill the high post of governor.

With him, it is a lifetime ambition about to be realized. For years he economized, struggled with adversity only to be found in a desert, railroad community, entered politics and all of its muck, played the game squarely and fairly and finally has landed on top of the pack without having sold his soul.

Friend Richardson commands the respect of every man, woman and child in this state for he is the living proof that all men are born free and equal and that our destinies are just what we ordain.

In view of the poison printers' ink being smeared on Senator Johnson's victory, it might be well to review the fact that he won the nomination by the largest plurality ever accorded a Republican candidate for the United States senate in California where opposition in party ranks took such a defiant attitude.

However, here's hoping that all Republicans will stand hitched, now that the fight is over and the battle more than half won.

BETTER SERVICE THROUGH IDEALS

Unattained Proves Lure to Most People, Declares Rev. Louis Tinning

"The Mission of An Unattained Ideal," was the topic of the sermon Sunday morning at the Presbyterian church.

"Men are incorrigible dreamers," declared the Rev Louis Tinning. "Before every life that rises above the mediocre there hangs a star-like hope which is never attained. Nothing is more tragic than the disparity between the splendor of our ambition and the poverty of our attainment. We cherish soaring ideals and then grovel in the dust.

"We look all about us and discover that this is not a theory but one of life's inexorable laws. Give a man everything and he immediately seeks for something beyond everything. Happiness requires for its completeness the desire to be still happier.

"Sir William Ramsay, in his suggestive book, 'The Teaching of Paul in Terms of the Present Day,' says, 'An ideal which can be realized cannot satisfy human need.' The ideal must ever remain in the front tempting the eagerness of man to strive onward. If it can be attained, it is imperfect.

For Something Better

"May the key to this mystery not lie in this: That we are never happy when standing still, but we push onward only when there is a goal ahead? He, who is satisfied, never tries to reach anything better. Interest lags when we attain our object. We advance only under stimulus of the unattained. To be at its best life must be on the stretch for something better.

"The highest service of every soul is born of restless aspiration. The brush, the mallet, the pen fall from the hand the moment the user is satisfied. Many a life lengthens that does not grow.

"Struggle for the unattained is God's method for developing us. It is not the thing we achieve, but the thing we try to achieve that determines our worth. Better trive for some great thing, though you leave it uncompleted, than fill your life with little things completed. Better leave a half-finished temple than a finished hovel. The call of life is to the impossible. Hitch your wagon to a star if you would rise out of the mire. He will accomplish very little who had no dream ladder to set up against the clouds."

Eastern Friends In Hands of Hosts Here

Mrs. Henry Johnston of 111 North Everett street was luncheon hostess last Friday, entertaining complimentary to a group of eastern friends, who have been sojourning in Southern California.

Her guests were Mrs. Henry Clevidence of Mt. Morris, Ill.; Mrs. J. G. Henry of Rockford, Ill.; Mrs. Orville Stonebreaker of Lincoln, Neb.; Mrs. George J. Phelps and Mrs. Vernor Phelps of Hollywood; Mrs. A. B. Clevidence of Los Angeles, and Mesdames E. O. Fits and Roger Fitz of Glendale.

VISIT TOPANGO CANYON

Topango Canyon was visited yesterday by three automobile loads of Glendale folk including Mr. and Mrs. Emil O. Kiefer of 511 East Wilson avenue, Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Shattuck, 320 Myrtle street, Dr. and Mrs. Lester Van De Car, 327 West Broadway, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. M. Burton, 1327 Campbell street.

TOGGERY SHOP TO HOLD RECEPTION

Music and Tea to Be Offered at Formal Opening on Thursday Afternoon

Glendale women have received invitations to a reception from 2 until 5 o'clock Thursday afternoon at 215 South Brand boulevard, to meet Betty Ellen, the good fairy presiding over the toggery shop and art studio being opened by Mrs. E. Joralemon of Pasadena, and Miss B. Suderstrom of Denver.

The little shop, which is to be known as the Betty Ellen shop, is being furnished in most attractive color schemes of the new putty shade and gray, with chandeliers and other appointments in the putty shade, black and orange.

With this delightful background Mrs. Joralemon and Miss Suderstrom plan to show a widely varied and tempting stock of everything for milady's wardrobe. There will be sweaters of many shades, styles and sizes, sport togs, dresses, hats, lingerie, blouses and hose.

Music and Tea

Everything has been planned in detail and just to give Glendale women a glimpse of the lovely things in store for them the reception has been arranged for Thursday, when models will display the stock, music will entertain and tea will be served.

In connection with the wearing apparel department there will be a studio room, where Mrs. Edith Furbeck's handpainted choia will be exhibited and shelves of gifts and cards for every age and occasion.

Pain Around Your Heart? IT'S GAS

GLENDALE GIVES SPECIAL PROGRAM

'Rich Men's Wives' Feature Attraction; Preview of Western Picture

"Rich Men's Wives," the feature attraction which has been packing the Glendale theatre to capacity the first of the week, closes this evening on a special program that should please everyone.

The feature in itself is more than satisfying, but added to that is a two-part western preview, "One Jump Ahead," with Leo Maloney and Josephine Hill.

Ben Turpin provides the comedy of the bill in "Step Forward."

The story of "Rich Men's Wives," in brief, is that of mother love which brings a father to the realization of his duty to the child of an unhappy marriage.

It is a lavish production, directed by Gasnier, well known local producer.

Theodore A. Bell Dies In Auto Crash

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 5.—Theodore A. Bell, former congressman and nationally known as a democratic and anti-prohibition leader in this state, is dead, and L. M. Mintzner, a local factory agent, Bell's companion, is recovering from internal injuries in the San Rafael hospital today, the result of the automobile in which they were riding being forced to the edge of the Bolinas road, near Fairfax, and toppling over a forty foot embankment. Bell was almost instantly killed. Both men were pinned beneath the heavy automobile.

When Mintzner had regained consciousness, he stated that lights from an approaching machine had blinded him and forced him to the edge of the road and over the embankment. Bell and Mintzner had been on a week-end hunting trip at Lagunitas and were returning to San Francisco when the fatal accident occurred.

Bell was born in Vallejo and passed his fiftieth birthday on July 25, last. His was an eventful career in political life. In addition to serving as congressman, Bell was a democratic nominee for governor of California in 1906, 1910 and 1918. There was great consternation, however, when Bell formally announced his affiliation with the republican party in March, this year, on the ground that President Harding's foreign policy had his full sympathy and support.

Bell is survived by his widow and a daughter, Miss Maurine Bell, who was to have been married to William Rude Davis, former lieutenant in the United States army air service, on September 26, at Oakland.

Mrs. Della M. Cotton Leaves for New York

Mrs. Della M. Cotton of Friendship, N. Y., who has been a guest here at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Foster of 632 Orange Grove avenue, for the last two months, left Sunday by the way of the Santa Fe.

On Labor day she saw the Grand Canyon and now is en route to Kansas City, where she will visit a brother before returning home. Mrs. Cotton's visit was the first with her parents in twenty-one years, so it was a joyful occasion, indeed.

TENSE THRONG IS AWAITING RESCUE

Entombed Miners Cannot Be Reached for Another Day at Least

By HERB WESTON
For International News Service.

JACKSON, Cal., Sept. 5.—There was a confused rustle between shifts today as dawn found a lone oil-scarred engineer mounting to a mighty organ in the winch house of the Kennedy mine.

There was a moment of silence that followed as the unseen director raised his baton for attention, and then in a creaking bass the huge drums which drop by cable skip after skip of rescue workers down a mile into the bowels of the Kennedy mine through which they hope to reach the forty-seven minters entrapped by a fire a week ago in the adjoining Argonaut claim, opened in no uncertain tempo the overture to the final big scene.

Have Bored a Half Mile

The engineer, surrounded by a labyrinth of levers, fingers them lovingly, pulls the visor of an ancient cap down lower over keen Scottish blue eyes, and then as the gauge shows a handful of humans rushing at the rate of a mile in two minutes down four thousand feet into chaos, pauses to take a chew of tobacco.

The mighty organ whirrs a soul song as old as mankind as the steel cables slipping eel-like down the shaft pull at the very heart-strings of those who labor frantically below.

So on — perhaps forty-eight hours—as the final chords sigh out the song of certainty there will be another hush. The word will come up the shaft that the rescue workers have broken through a half mile to their entombed comrades in the neighboring mine.

Scores Near Collapse

The overture will be cut short, wives and children, near collapse, will crowd the mouth of the shaft in a scene that will strain human nerves to a breaking point. A call will come for nurses and physicians. They will take their places in the skip. Again there will be a moment of silence and then far back-stage will tinkle a little bell—twice.

The lone engineer will strain at the levers, and his tobacco, and down, down, the skip will go shooting to the vanguard of rescue workers prepare to cut its way through the final wall to the horror chamber where the forty-seven have been imprisoned since a week ago Sunday.

Ready for Rescue

So tense has become the strain here that practically everyone is attempting to visualize the final dramatic scene as the rescuers break through. There will be a search; it may take hours, perhaps days, to locate those who in the first frantic effort to escape, lost themselves, in secluded slopes and man-ways. Most of them, it is believed, will be found near the Muldoon shaft.

A first aid station will be established down in the mine and another at the surface. Every possible contingency has been provided for by mine experts and officials of the Industrial Accident commission.

Is There a Monkey In Your Family Tree?

"Evolution"—or "Is There a Monkey in Your Family Tree?" will be the subject of an address to be made by William J. Bryan at Trinity auditorium, the date to be announced later, for the benefit of the First Methodist church of Los Angeles.

William Hunter of the Glendale Paint & Paper company, has 75 tickets for local reservations, comprising the first three rows of the east balcony. He advises local followers of the silver-tongued orator to get seats early.

Willie Thinks He Can Do Come-Back

DEL MONTE, Calif., Sept. 5.—Willie Ritchie, former lightweight champion of the world, in announcing his intention of re-entering the ring, declared today that he could knock out the majority of fighters in his class now roaming the country drawing big purses.

Ritchie declared he would probably go east in October and make final arrangements with some prominent New York promoter to re-enter the ring.

TELLS OF GROWTH BY ADVENTISTS' CONFERENCE

W. Milton Adams In Report on Year's Work; Offers Facts and Figures and fifteen missionaries. In addition there are eleven others assisting at the encampment.

There are also eight departmental secretaries and G. W. Reaser, the business agent.

Of vital importance is the financial condition, which, according to the quoted report of W. L. Mecum, secretary and treasurer, is in fine shape. For the years 1918 and 1919 the total amount of tithes was $231,359.21, while for 1920-1921 it was $320,673.30, an increase of $89,314.09. The tithe per capita for the last biennial period was $44.82. For the same period the church people have given to foreign missions $188,833.81 and to home missions and local interests $57,326.45.

Adding these figures one has a contribution of $566,833.56 or a per capita of $78.25.

Educational Work

Mr. Adams also makes special mention of the tract society, home mission organization, Sabbath school, young people's missionary volunteer society, and colporteur work.

He furthermore briefly outlines the educational work, particularly at the San Fernando academy, operated as a joint school with the Southeastern California Conference. At the academy the regular work is given and also one year of normal. A class of thirty-five was graduated last year and the total enrollment was 115. Eighty of that number were from the Southern California Conference.

Mr. Adams next takes occasion to compliment Dr. H. G. Westphal and his associates upon the splendid management and success of the Glendale Sanitarium and Hospital.

Conference Headquarters

Of interest to the church people is the report of the establishment of the conference headquarters at 3131 Pasadena avenue. Previously over $25,000 had been paid out in rents during a period of nine years. But in 1920 the conference purchased the present location for $10,000 and later six more lots for $596. Improvements were made at a cost of $575 and a warehouse built for $3300.

In closing Mr. Adams gives the following information with regard to the encampment management:

"Two years ago we sold off all our old family tents and worn out camp fixtures for $4500. We now have 314 new family tents, three ifield tents and six other smaller tents, making a total of 325 tents. We also have over 2000 chairs, 200 spring cots, 200 mattresses and 200 tables, representing an investment of approximately $30,000."

The big feature of Sunday at the encampment was the opening of the exhibit tent arranged by the Glendale Sanitarium and Hospital.

Organ Fund Garden Party on Thursday

The members of the committee for the garden party to be given by the Congregational church Thursday night at 7:30 o'clock for the benefit of the organ fund met this morning at the home of the chairman, Mrs. Charles A. Parker, 212 North Orange street. Final arrangements were made for the event, which will take place on the grounds of the Kaemmerling residence at Orange street and Lexington drive.

The chairmen in charge of the various booths and concessions include the following: Mrs. L. P. Abell, punch; Mrs. Irene McReynolds, ice cream; Mrs. A. Angier, candy and popcorn; Mrs. H. W. Yarick, guessing contests; young people's orchestra, under direction of Miss Winifred Parker; country store, Mrs. E. D. Yard; fortune telling booth, Mrs. Mabel Franklin Ocker. At the latter booth there will also be the gypsy Carmenta, the mother of Prophecy, who will tell about the past and also the future. In addition to this there will be a mystery booth and other features. Those in charge of the big event state that admission to the grounds will be free.

Jim Griffin Winner of Baseball Uniform

All ready for the junior league! That is the way 8-year-old Jim Griffin, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. V. Griffin of 205 West Acacia street, feels about it today. He is proudly wearing a new grey and green baseball suit, having been given that prize in a contest just closed by Ed Nisle, clothier ot 135½ South Brand boulevard.

The prize was awarded to the boy turning in the largest number of names and addresses of Glendale boys between the ages of 6 and 16. Little Jim's record was over 300 names.

LOSES BLACK HANDBAG

V. D. Taylor of 403 Fairview avenue has reported to the police the loss of a black handbag belonging to his wife. It contained about $25 in cash, a pair of gold-rimmed glasses and several bottles of medicine.

AT GLENDALE HOSPITAL

Minor operations were performed this morning at the Glendale Sanitarium and Hospital on Miss Lelia Jackson of 315 West Los Feliz road, and Bartledge Landes, son of R. R. Landes of 525 West California avenue.

president, acted as toastmaster. During the hour that the delegation remained in this community he succeeded in keeping things humming.

Perry W. Stamps, president of the San Francisco Purchasing Agents' association, expressed the appreciation of the members of his organization for the hospitality of southern California.

"There isn't any Tehachapi now," he remarked with enthusiasm, "It's all one straight-of-way between the south and the north. Next year we expect to have you fellows up north and at that time we will try to express to you by actual deeds just how much we think of you."

W. H. McBryde of San Francisco was the next speaker. He is a director of the California Development association and president of the Industrial Association of California.

Faith Moves Mountains

"Faith is strong enough to move mountains," he stated. "It has already removed the Tehachapi. We are all working day and night to develop this great state of ours. We are just as proud of the things you have to offer the new people here as we are of the things we have to offer them ourselves."

A. T. Cowan, publisher of The Glendale News, was called upon for a few words and said, in part:

"We are very glad to have such a 'peppy crowd' with us. The south is always ready to welcome the north and to co-operate in all interests. There is not any state in the union that can be divided. In behalf of The Glendale Evening News I extend a hearty welcome to you and hope that you will call again."

Rousing cheers were given for Glendale and Mayor Spencer Robinson by those present.

M. Barry, representative of The Oakland Tribune, made a short speech in which he said that he would like to come down here later and meet Mayor Robinson.

Glendale was represented also by City Manager W. H. Reeves, Councilman A. H. Lapham and Col. J. D. Fraser, chief of police.

The Waldorf-Astoria plate luncheon, which was served under the direction of William Herzel, was eaten with a relish. It consisted largely of chicken with trimmings. The Broadway Inn was decorated with large bouquets of dahlias from the Dahlia Gardens of Glendale.

SCOUTS ARE BACK FROM CONFERENCE

Glendale Strongly Boosted by Delegation Sent to Older Boys' Meeting of how the older fellow lives; his home; his church; his school; his town and his friends. Scout Robert Eastman led the discussion on "His Town." After lunch a big demonstration was staged in front of the grandstand.

The Verdugo Hills delegation put over a very snappy and educational demonstration of the use of the triangular bandages and emergency stretchers. Saturday evening another conference was held with subjects covering the older fellow and how he works. These were his vocation and his avocation. These conferences were an inspiration to everyone and the scouts entered into the spirit of the occasion whole-heartedly.

Sunday morning church services were held for both the Catholic and protestant scouts after which they inspected Fort Smutter. Exhibits were entered by a number of the councils and in the final results of the whole conference the Verdugo Hills delegation were given eleventh place, nosing out such councils as San Francisco, Oakland, Ventura county, etc. The conference banner was won by Kern county, who claimed it last year. They beat Orange County Council by only one-half point.

Verdugans Make Hit

The Verdugo Hills District Delegation made a very creditable showing. The boys worked hard and there was no problem of discipline during the whole conference. At no time did they fail to boost Glendale and its environments. They kept at it so persistently that everyone at the conference knew who they were and where they were from.

The delegation is planning to visit every troop in the Verdugo Hills District to tell the Scouts of the interesting events and what the conference was like.

Local Residents Back From Mountain Trip

Judge and Mrs. Owen C. Emery and son Jack, Mr. and Mrs. L. Hyde and Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Menk returned late last night from a short vacation at Big Bear lake.

Leaving Glendale early last Thursday morning in Judge Emery's new Dodge touring car and Mr. Menk's Marmon sport, the party motored to Bartlett's camp on the lake shore, where cabins had been reserved. They spent five days of hiking, horseback riding, botaing, swimming and fishing. Although no casualties in the fish family were reported, the party took a number of pictures of the lake region, which they pronounce as the most beautiful spot in Southern California.

The Mill Creek road they found the best. The cars gave no trouble, and the only unpleasant incident occurred when they were returning over the Rim of the World route. A large car passed Mr. Menk's machine on a narrow stretch of the road and the two scraped fenders. No damage was done except for the scratching off of some paint.

Wisconsin Primary Contest Ends Today

MILWAUKEE, Sept. 5.—The bitterest of all Wisconsin primary battles reached the voters today. In the republican senatorial contest the renomination of Robert M. La Follette by an old-time majority seemed certain. Many of of his supporters predicted his majority would reach 200,000 votes. The weather was ideal and crowds started for the polls early in the day.

Campaign leaders for the Rev. William A. Ganfield, Presbyterian minister and college president, who is opposing La Follette were not disturbed at the predictions of a big vote for Ganfield's opponent, but stated that Ganfield should win a victory.

In the governorship race the result will be closer. Attorney General William J. Morgan has been waging a terrific fight against Governor Blaine. On the democratic side it is not a fight to see who will be nominated, but an eleventh hour effort to muster enough votes to retain the party title in the state. To do this democrats must poll 25,000 votes today.

The Turks know nothing of the Turkish bath.

On Saturday of this week, September 9, the banks, public offices and many mercantile establishments of Glendale will be closed in celebration of Admission Day, a legal holiday in the State of California. California, the 31st State to enter the Union, has the unique record of taking her place as a State without first being a territory of the United States. The admission was accomplished on September 9, 1850, after several unsuccessful attempts at statehood.

California History Romantic

Perhaps the first white man to set foot on the soil of California was Cabrillo, who is credited with discovering it in 1542. Subsequently, many Spaniards and several English privateers conducted explorations along the coast and some little distance inland. The majority of these explorations were in quest of wondrous treasures told of by Indian lore of the tribes of the vicinity.

First attempts at colonizing and civilizing the Indians here were made by the Franciscan fathers. Don Jose Galvez, the visitador general of Mexico, fitted an expedition to enter and take possession of California, leaving the religious conquest to Fra Junipero Serra. The accomplishment was remarkable, as history shows, and was attended by the establishment of 21 missions throughout California. It was during this period of mission building that the famous El Camino Real, or "The King's Highway," between missions was created.

Application has been made to the Courts for permission to change the name of the Los Angeles Trust & Savings Bank to the Pacific Southwest Trust & Savings bank. The date on which this change becomes effective is not yet known.

California at this time was under Spanish rule. The capital was at Monterey, which had been discovered and named by Vizcaino in 1602, was lost for over 160 years, and then found again in 1770 when the Mission San Carlos was founded.

When Spain lost Mexico, she also lost California. The rise of Mexican rule saw a very prosperous California. The chief industry was cattle raising. Commerce in hides, tallow and allied commodities was carried on with the few traders who came to her shores. There was little money in circulation and little need of it. The Mexican governors presented magnificent land grants to those who stood high in military and political favor. Under Mexican rule the prosperous era of California rapidly declined, leading it divided politically and shaken with revolt.

Conquest of California

The fact that Mexico would ultimately lose California was apparent for some time previous to the actual declaration of independence. The only question was which country should attain possession of it. That question was settled by a party of Americans under the leadership of such men as Capt. John C. Fremont, Ezekiel Merrit and Commodore Sloat. The conquest of California was finally completed, with little bloodshed, by Commodore Stockton, Colonel Fremont and General Kearny, when, on June 14, 1846, the bear flag was hoisted indicating the establishment of the Republic of California. This republic lasted but 26 days, when the bear flag was lowered and the Stars and Stripes of the United States were run up in its place. On August 15, 1846, California was declared a territory of the United States, but no territorial government was subsequently granted.

The discovery of gold by Marshall at Sutter's Mill in 1848 gave impetus to the influx from all parts of the world. The great body of gold seekers arrived in 1849.

One of the important departments of the government of California is the State Banking Department, under whose stringent laws and constant surveillance the state banks of California are operated. The Los Angeles Trust & Savings Bank, with its branches, serving twenty-four California cities from Fresno south, offers its customers a three-fold protection:

(1) the strength of its own extensive capital and resources;
(2) its membership in the Federal Reserve System, and,
(3) its supervision by the Banking Department of the State of California.
